IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving memory of my dear Husband Ben A. Thornhill, who passed away one year ago on October 15, 1962.
Gone but not forgotten,
October brings sad memories of my Dear Husband
Who has gone to rest.
Those who are thinking of him today.
Are those who loved him best.
I have lost my soul's companion
A life linked with my own.
And oh how sadly I do miss him
As I walk through life alone.
You left behind a broken heart
That loved you so sincerely
That never did on never will forget you Husband dear.
The dearest one in all the world
Has gone away to stay.
A broken home is all I have,
Since you have gone away,
You had a smile for everyone
A heart as pure as gold,
To those who knew and loved him,
His memory will never grow old.
Keep him, Jesus, in thy keeping until I reach the Heavenly Shore
Then Oh master, let me know him and love him as I did before.
A happy home I once enjoyed,
how sweet the memory still,
But death has left a vacant chair
that never can be filled.
He waits for me by the river, just across the silent stream,
Where the flowers are ever blooming,
And the banks are ever green.
Though my heart may break with sorrow
as the grief is hard to bear,
I shall meet you some bright morning,
In the Heavenly Garden there
Wife, Thelma J. Thornhill
10-10-1t

In loving memory of my husband, Rev. N. R. Jordan, who departed this life five years ago, October 12, 1958.
Peaceful be thy rest dear Rev.
It is sweet to breathe thy name.
In life, I loved you dearly,
In death I do the same.
A. S. Jordan, Widow

Christian Purity

Lesson for October 13, 1963

The word "purity" has almost lost its meaning. When a man is recommended for a position many questions are asked, but a question about his "purity" would be puzzling to many. Such is the degredation of the world in which we live, that there is very little notion of purity outside the Christian church. It is otherwise with other virtues. Courage, loyalty, a gainst friendship? "How can I break the law of the land?" (for the Egyptians knew well that adultery was wrong; or "How can I sully my family's high ideals, and my own?" Joseph said something only to say that there is more guidance available than you might have thought possible. Some basic elements in the Christian view will now be mentioned.

First of all, as we understand the New Testament, sex is not sinful in itself. If it were, all marriages would be wicked, and we should have to blame God for making the human race male and female. Sex is neither a bestial necessity nor an end in itself. The Christian ideal is that sex finds its rightful expression in marriage, and that before marriage virginity is God's ideal both for man and women. (The notion that purity is a strictly female virtue is pagan, not Christian.)

Christian Motives Again

There are many arguments for chastity. Margaret C. Banning wrote an article in which she makes the point that even from the standpoint of personal satisfaction and happiness, chastity is the ideal. But the Christian view goes farther than this. The New Testament teaches that each person's body, once God's Spirit, and that fornication or adultery is a profanation and a sin, for that reason if for no others.

About the turn of the century there was a young Austrian who had been a lifetime member of the church, yet whose life was a constant series of sins against the Seventh Commandment. He did not believe that chastity was either possible or desirable. Then in God's providence he was led to make the acquaintance of two young priests about his own age. He discovered, somewhat against his will, because at first he could not believe they were genuine, that these men lived lives that to him were a continuous miracle. How can this be? he asked himself. He finally came to understand that c h a s t i t y, like every Christian virtue, is s u p e r natural. It is not possible (just as love in the Christian sense is not possible) without the Holy Spirit. This discovery was the turning point in his lifetime.

The sin of unchastity, or sins of sex, they have many forms—are like all sins, against what? Against marriage, against the love that is life's greatest human joy, against oneself, and against society. But the important fact is deeper. When Joseph was tempted by Potiphar's wife, he said, "How can I sin against you?" for the lady was really asking him to commit a crime against her. He might have said, "How can I sin against my employer?" against his own self? Joseph said something only to say that there is more guidance available than you might have thought possible. Some basic elements in the Christian view will now be mentioned.

Pastor Speaks

ONE THING FOR SURE—Your sins will discover the real you. The Bible says, ". . . be sure your sins will find you out." (Numbers 32:23)

Some years ago, an avid gambler in Central America was won to Christ by a missionary. He asked the missionary to suggest something he might do to help in the witness of Christ. The missionary suggested that he purchase one of those one-arm bandits", took it apart, and discovered the reason one can't win.

He took the machine with him on his lectures and explained to the interested crowds why they could not win against "rigged gambling" machines. Then he gave his witness for Christ.

What is true of the gambling device, is true of sin and many evil. You can't win. The odds are against you. Sin is a gamble. It is trying to conquer life apart from God. Sin is "unbelief," "unrighteousness", breaking God's law and the law of your own conscience, and the failure to accept the Lord's war for life. You are being "hoaxed" if you think you can win over sin. At times it may seem that you are winning, but in time, it will turn your nature inside out.

Thomas Huxley, the scientist, writing to Charles Kingsley the historian, said that the gravitation of sin to sorrow is as certain as that of the earth to the sun. There is a law of gravitation in sin just as in the earth to the sun. Your sins will surely find you out.

Paul, the great Apostle of the New Testament, said that the "law of sin and death" works in the natural man. God is not saying that your neighbors will find out your sin. They can be so wrong at times. Neither does He say your friends or family may find it out. But sin carries its own identification. No matter how clever or prudent one may be, one cannot dodge the constitution of one's own nature as a sinner.

A young man walked up to one of those "one-arm-bandits", put in a nickle and out fell the jackpot. "My lucky day" he said to a pal. Two hours later all the nickles plus a considerable more had been fed into the machine. He lost money, plus enough time to earn many times that much.

Sin will not win for one in this life and, of course, in the life to come. It carries a terrific penalty— eternal death, separation from God.

There is one and ONLY one way to win over sin's penalty—through a living, vital faith in Christ.
